CLASSICAL ACADEMIC PRESS

Director's Planning Tool

Instructions

Ideas for what the director can provide to their teachers and community.

- Access to a Zoom online classroom. If the director has the subscription, teachers can record classes for any length of time. Teachers will just have to stagger when they use it, as only one host can be there at a time.
- Assistance in setting up Canvas, if you desire, for students to have an online discussion, and turn in assignments. You can also direct them to our video on ScholeGroups.com.
- Admin access to host a Facebook Live in the Private Facebook group if your group is using this method.
- Assistance in processing through how to shift your class to online learning. Sometimes it takes a bit of discussion to find the right fit for each class. You can also send your teachers to the basic training video. This will help them have a framework for thinking through these decisions as well as ideas they can implement in their classes.

Examples of what each director will need from their teachers.

Teachers, please summarize what each of your classes will do below. You do not need to explain the details, just a logistical snapshot of what parents need to do, what they can count on you doing, and where they need to go or send their kids to engage in learning.

You can communicate details to your parents through the method of your choice (email, shared google folder, canvas, etc.)

Here is an example. THIS IS JUST AN EXAMPLE of the kind of information you as the director should be looking for. Your goal is to give your teachers the logistical and tech support they need to keep their classes running smoothly and restfully. The communal goal is to make sure learning continues in community and parents have all the content and course information they need to navigate the switch to online learning.
