- When our interpretation is so heavily influenced by our upbringing and by our social background, how do we know that we are paying attention to the text?
- Is the older brother's accusation true?
- Questions Asking questions like this helps us think about the story and pay attention to the story.
  - Was the father right to give him the money and let him go?
  - Why did he want to go so far away?
  - What does this story imply about the relationship between the father and his sons? Between brothers?
- Ask yourself at every sentence, what did this just say? What information is being added? Ask what just happened? What are we being told?

Confrontation Stories - John 3, Nicodemus & Jesus (and disciples)

- Jesus takes control of the conversation and directing it where he wants it to go. The other side allows this to happen because they don't have an answer.
- Jesus' and Nicodemus' are having a common type of rabbinic conversation.
- Ask about each statement or question of a conversation.
- Have two students act out the story. Read it with different tones of voice.

Assignment

- Matthew Ox
- Mark Lion
- Luke Man
- John Eagle
- Where did those symbols come from? What clues are there in the gospel that that might be the right way to interpret it?
- Read Ezekiel 1 and Revelation 4. Why do these symbols show up again and again?
- Help your students enjoy what they are doing.
